

In Memory of Journey
September 4, 2018

Journey came to Dreamchaser in 2012, having been abandoned in the desert. She was very thin, and had extremely long 'elf' feet. Her estimated age was 9. With proper hoof care, loads of hay and grain, and lots of attention from all the volunteers, she blossomed.

Journey had surgery for squamous cell cancer in 2014, and was fine until just a couple of months ago. When Journey's mammary glands became swollen, we thought she might have some infection going on, and had Dr. Steve take some samples of the serum inside. Cultures showed nothing, but the swelling persisted. After much searching for answers, we had to conclude that the cancer metastasized. When the swelling started stocking up her legs, making it difficult to walk, Dr. Steve came out and laid her to rest near Classy. She had a wonderful 6 years with Dreamchaser; we wish she could have had more.

Fly with the group of angels from Dreamchaser, dear Journey.
